Asbestos is a naturally occurring mineral fiber that was widely used in building materials due to its durability and heat resistance. In Palos Verdes Estates, many homes built before the 1980s may contain asbestos in insulation, roofing, flooring, or siding. The primary health concern arises when asbestos fibers become airborne and are inhaled, potentially causing serious respiratory diseases including asbestosis, lung cancer, and mesothelioma. Several building materials used historically in Palos Verdes Estates homes may contain asbestos:

- Textured paints and patching compounds

Identifying these materials is essential for assessing potential legal and health implications.

Health Risks Associated with Asbestos Exposure

Exposure to asbestos fibers can lead to long-term health issues. The severity depends on the duration and intensity of exposure. Asbestos-related diseases often have latency periods of several decades, complicating legal claims and health assessments. Legal Requirements for Asbestos Disclosure in Real Estate Transactions

In Palos Verdes Estates, California law imposes specific obligations on sellers and real estate agents regarding asbestos disclosure. These rules aim to protect buyers by ensuring they are informed about potential hazards prior to purchase.

California's Asbestos Disclosure Laws

Buyer's Right to Inspection

Costs and Responsibilities

Determining who bears the cost of asbestos remediation depends on the transaction terms and ownership status. Sellers may be required to perform abatement before sale, or buyers may negotiate price adjustments.
