Overview of the SBU Financial Aid Office

The sbu financial aid office is the centralized hub for all student financial assistance services at Stony Brook University. It operates with the mission to provide equitable access to education by helping students find the financial resources needed to attend the university. The office administers federal, state, and institutional aid programs and serves as a liaison between students and funding agencies.

Staffed by knowledgeable financial aid professionals, the office offers direct support through personalized counseling sessions, workshops, and online resources. Additionally, the sbu financial aid office coordinates with other university departments to ensure students receive comprehensive support, including billing and enrollment services.

Location and Contact Information

The sbu financial aid office is conveniently located on campus to facilitate easy access for students. Office hours and contact details are regularly updated to accommodate student inquiries, especially during peak application periods. Students are encouraged to reach out via phone, email, or in-person visits to discuss their financial aid options.

Mission and Objectives

The core mission of the sbu financial aid office is to promote student success by reducing financial barriers. The office strives to provide transparent, accurate, and timely information about financial aid programs and to assist students in making informed decisions regarding their educational financing. Additionally, the office aims to foster a supportive environment that respects the diverse financial situations of the student body.

Types of Financial Aid Available

The sbu financial aid office offers a broad spectrum of financial aid options tailored to meet the needs of a diverse student population. These include grants, scholarships, loans, work-study programs, and emergency funding. Each type of aid has specific eligibility requirements and application procedures.

Grants and Scholarships

Grants and scholarships represent gift aid that does not require repayment. The sbu financial aid office administers various merit-based and need-based awards to help reduce the cost of attendance.

- Federal Pell Grant: Available to undergraduate students demonstrating significant financial need.
- New York State Tuition Assistance Program (TAP): Provides aid to eligible residents attending college in New York State.
- Stony Brook University Scholarships: Merit-based awards given to students based on academic achievements, leadership, and other criteria.

Loans

Student loans are a common form of financial aid offered through the sbu financial aid office. These funds must be repaid with interest, but they provide necessary support to cover tuition and living costs when grants and scholarships are insufficient.

- Federal Direct Subsidized Loans: Loans with interest paid by the government while the student is in school.
- Federal Direct Unsubsidized Loans: Loans where interest accrues during all periods.
- Parent PLUS Loans: Federal loans available to parents of dependent undergraduate students.

Work-Study Programs

The Federal Work-Study program provides part-time employment opportunities for students with financial need. Positions may be on or off campus and offer students a chance to earn money to help pay education expenses while gaining valuable work experience.

Application and Eligibility Requirements

The sbu financial aid office follows a structured process to determine student eligibility for various aid programs. Understanding and meeting these requirements is essential for securing financial assistance.

FAFSA Submission

The Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) is the foundational form used by the sbu financial aid office to assess a student's financial need. Students must submit the FAFSA annually, providing accurate financial and personal information.

State and Institutional Forms

In addition to the FAFSA, New York State residents may need to submit the TAP application to qualify for state aid. The sbu financial aid office also requires students to complete specific institutional forms for university scholarships and emergency aid.

Eligibility Criteria

Eligibility for aid varies depending on the type of assistance. Common factors include:

- Enrollment status (full-time or part-time)

- Academic progress and satisfactory performance
- Financial need as determined by FAFSA and other documentation
- U.S. citizenship or eligible non-citizen status
- Compliance with federal and state aid regulations

Financial Aid Counseling and Resources

The sbu financial aid office provides extensive counseling services to help students understand their financial aid packages and make informed decisions. These resources are designed to support students throughout their academic careers.

Personalized Financial Aid Counseling

Students can schedule one-on-one sessions with financial aid advisors to review their aid eligibility, discuss loan options, and plan budgets. Counselors also assist with resolving any issues related to aid applications and disbursement.

Workshops and Informational Sessions

Regular workshops cover topics such as FAFSA completion, loan repayment options, scholarship searches, and budgeting strategies. These sessions help students stay informed and empowered in managing their finances.

Online Tools and Resources

The sbu financial aid office maintains a comprehensive website with frequently asked questions, application guides, deadline calendars, and calculators to estimate aid awards and loan repayments.

Managing and Renewing Financial Aid

Maintaining financial aid eligibility requires proactive management and adherence to renewal procedures. The sbu financial aid office outlines clear steps for students to follow each academic year.

Renewal Process

Most financial aid awards require an annual renewal, which involves submitting updated FAFSA forms and any additional documentation requested by the sbu financial aid office. Timely submission is critical to avoid delays or loss of aid.

Satisfactory Academic Progress (SAP)

Students must meet specific academic benchmarks to continue receiving financial aid. The SAP policy evaluates GPA, credit completion rate, and maximum timeframe for degree completion. The sbu financial aid office monitors compliance and provides guidance for students on probation or suspension.

Budgeting and Financial Literacy

The office encourages students to develop strong financial management skills by offering resources on budgeting, debt management, and responsible borrowing. Effective budgeting helps students make the most of their financial aid and minimize unnecessary debt.

Appeals and Special Circumstances

In cases of significant changes in family income or other unforeseen circumstances, students may appeal for reconsideration of their financial aid awards. The sbu financial aid office reviews appeals carefully and may adjust aid packages accordingly.
